November 2, 1862—The fact that a report has been made in favor of New London as a naval station by the beard of officers appointed to examine that harbor does not secure the navy yard. The report is simply a rejection of League Islands. As the case stands the deportment can do not be seen to the contract of the security of the secur stands, the department can do noth-ing, the law simply requiring the board to examine the harbor of New London and the waters of the Narragansett bay before reporting as to League Island.

The Twenty-Sixth regiment re-ceived its state flag on Saturday. Sharp Shooting. The following tribute to the Tenth Connecticut is from a letter published in the Boston Mercury: I have great pleasure in communicating to you that a friend of mine operating in the army in North Carolina told me of all the Northern troops he had seen under life, none showed more enthuslasm than the New Englanders. He added that the Tenth Connecticut made such colendid shooting at Newbern that field piece opposed to them only fired one shot. The rebels were never able to man it again, for their artillerymen were shot down as fast as they made their appearance. Nor did their in-fantry fare much better. The supporting regiment, although supported by field works, was silenced in seven minutes. The Connecticuters acted on the principal "wherever you see a
